

Executive Search Partners Offers Information Technology Executive Search Expertise

Company Formed by Three Senior Business Executives Provides Unparalleled Executive Search Services to Metro Detroit Businesses

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – March 3, 2005 – Farmington Hills, Mich. – Executive Search Partners (www.ExecSearchPartners.com) recently began offering executive search capabilities to metro Detroit businesses. Executive Search Partners' expertise is recruiting information technology, sales, business development, and consulting executives in southeast Michigan, although the company will place executives in other regions as requested by its clients. Executive Search Partners, formed by Gary Erickson, Gary Robertson and Larry Hamilton, offers the expertise and experience of three business executives, resulting in superior results for the company's clients.

Through the experience of its leaders, Executive Search Partners is able to effectively find the right executive matches for its clients. With a combined century of management experience, Erickson, Robertson and Hamilton have not only served as senior business executives at a variety of companies, but also have successfully hired hundreds of executives, engineers, consultants, and managers for their own companies.

“Executive Search Partners is an expansion of Erickson Partners, which grew 300 percent in 2004,” said managing partner Gary Erickson. “There is a demand for executive search services in metro Detroit. Executive Search Partners is the only Michigan-based company with principals who have held executive-level information technology and operational positions. Executive Search Partners' experience in hiring executives for their own companies results in superior results for its clients.”

Erickson has held a variety of management and executive positions including chief information officer, chief operations officer, director of sales, and global director of quality and manufacturing. In 1994, he was named one of the country's leading mid-market CIO's by Deloitte and Touche. Erickson is a founding member of the Detroit chapter of the Society of Information Managers and on its Board of Directors.

Robertson has served as chief information officer and plant manager at Delco Electronics, and chief technology officer at Delphi. He currently sits on the board of directors of the Michigan chapter of the Society of Information Management, and the Technology Business Committee of Automation Alley. He previously served on the HP/Compaq Global board of advisors and the Digex Customer advisory board. He is a certified Six Sigma Green Belt, and has significant business process reengineering experience.

Hamilton has served as manager of information systems for The Budd Company, vice president of information systems for Textron Automotive and the global director of manufacturing plant floor systems for General Motors. Hamilton, a Six Sigma green belt certified by the University of Michigan College of Manufacturing Engineering, holds an e-business certification from the Gartner Group and is a founding member of a the Detroit chapter of the Society of Information Management
